DEPARTMENT OF THE ATTORNEY-GENERAL

COURT OF APPEAL

In the matter of the "Constitutional Questions Determination Act," Chapter 66, R.S.B.C. 1948; and in the matter of Section 14 of Bill 55, now called the "Vancouver Charter Amendment Act, 1958," Chapter 72 of the Statutes of British Columbia, 1958, under which said Section 14 shall not come into force until proclaimed by the Lieutenant-Governor in Council.

The Law Courts,
Vancouver, B.C.

To His Honour,
The Lieutenant-Governor in Council,
Parliament Buildings,
Victoria, B.C.

Pursuant to the provisions of the "Constitutional Questions Determination Act" (Chapter 66, R.S.B.C. 1948), the Court of Appeal hereby certifies its opinion upon the questions stated herein as referred to it by His Honour the Lieutenant-Governor in Council, and relating to the matter of Sunday sport in the City of Vancouver. The terms of the said Order in Council read as follows:—

To His Honour the Lieutenant-Governor in Council:

"The undersigned has the honour to report that at the second session of the Twenty-fifth Legislature of the Province, Bill 55, entitled 'An Act to amend the "Vancouver Charter,"' was introduced and received first reading on February 6th, 1958;

"And that section 14 of Bill 55 reads as follows:—

14. The said Act is further amended by inserting the following as section 206A:—

"206A. (1) Notwithstanding anything contained in the 'Sunday Observance Act' or in any other Statute or law of the Province, where a by-law passed under subsection (2) hereof is in force and subject to its provisions, it shall be lawful for any person between half past one and six o'clock in the afternoon of the Lord's Day, commonly called Sunday, to provide for or engage in any public game or sport for gain, or for any prize or reward, or to be present at any performance of such public game or sport at which any fee is charged, directly or indirectly, either for admission to such performance or to any place within which the same is provided, or for any service or privilege thereat, that is specified in such by-law and which but for this section would be unlawful under section 6 of 'The Lord's Day Act (Canada)' or to do or engage any other person to do any work, business, or labour in connection with any such public game or sport which but for this section would be unlawful under section 4 of 'The Lord's Day Act (Canada).'

"(2) (a) The Council may pass a by-law declaring subsection (1) to be in force throughout the city or in such part or parts thereof as may be specified in the by-law, and upon such by-law coming into force, subsection (1) shall apply throughout the city or in such specified part or parts as the case may be.

"(b) The application of subsection (1) shall be limited to such public games or sports as are specified in the by-law.

"(c) The by-law shall not specify horse-racing as a public game or sport.

"(d) Where subsection (1) applies in specified parts of the city, the limitation authorized by clause (b) hereof may differ in different parts.

"(e) The by-law may reduce the period of time between half past one and six o'clock mentioned in subsection (1).

"(f) The by-law shall provide for the regulation and control of the public games and sports specified in it and may provide for the regulation and control of any matter or thing in connection with such public games and sports.

"(g) (i) No by-law passed under this section shall be repealed until the following question has been submitted to the electors, and a majority of affirmative votes obtained: 'Are you in favour of the repeal of the by-law passed under the authority of the "Vancouver Charter" that regulates public games and sports for gain on the Lord's Day?'

"(ii) The Council may submit the question set out above to the electors at any annual election.

"(iii) Upon the presentation of a petition requesting that the by-law passed under this section be repealed, signed by at least ten per cent of the electors of the municipality, the Council shall at the next annual election submit to the electors the question set out in subclause (i).

"(h) Any petition mentioned in clause (g) (iii) above shall be deemed to be presented when it is lodged with the City Clerk, and the sufficiency of the petition shall be determined by him, and his certificate as to its sufficiency shall be conclusive for all purposes: Provided, however, that a petition that is lodged with the City Clerk in the months of November or December shall be deemed to be presented in the month of February next following."

"And that doubt exists as to the legislative competence of the Legislature to enact the provisions of section 14 of the Bill in whole or in part:

"And to recommend that pursuant to the 'Constitutional Questions Determination Act' there be referred to the Court of Appeal for hearing and consideration the following question: 'Is section 14 of Bill 55, entitled "An Act to amend the "Vancouver Charter,"" or any of the provisions thereof, and in what particular or particulars, or to what extent, intra vires the Legislature of the Province?'

"Dated this 25th day of February, A.D. 1958.

R. W. BONNER,
"Attorney-General."

Approved this 25th day of February, A.D. 1958.

W. A. C. BENNETT,
"Presiding Member of the Executive Council."

The Court hearing the reference question therein was constituted as follows: The Honourable Mr. Justice O'Halloran (presiding), the Honourable Mr. Justice Sidney Smith, the Honourable Mr. Justice Bird, the Honourable Mr. Justice Davey, the Honourable Mr. Justice Sheppard.

Question.—Is section 14 of Bill 55, entitled "An Act to amend the "Vancouver Charter,"" or any of the provisions thereof, and in what particular or particulars, or to what extent, intra vires the Legislature of the Province?

Answer.—The answer of the majority of the Court (O'Halloran, Bird, and Davey, J.J.A.) is that section 14 of the said Bill 55 is in its entirety intra vires the Legislature of the Province. The Honourable Mr. Justice Sidney Smith and the Honourable Mr. Justice Sheppard, dissenting, certify in their respective opinions that said section 14 is ultra vires the Province.

Attached hereto are the reasons given by the Justices of Appeal supporting the majority opinion of the Court, together with the reasons given by the dissenting minority of the Court.

This report is being forwarded you by registered mail on this 9th day of June, 1958. Accordingly, on Thursday, 12th June, 1958, the Court of Appeal will announce its opinion in open Court in Vancouver. By section 7 of the "Constitutional Questions Determination Act," supra, the opinion of the Court "shall be deemed a judgment of the Court of Appeal"; and section 26 of the "Court of Appeal Act" (chapter 74, R.S.B.C. 1948) requires that all judgments of the Court of Appeal shall be delivered in open Court.

Certified at the Law Courts, Vancouver, British Columbia, on the 9th day of June, 1958.

"And that doubt exists as to the legislative competence of the Legislature to enact the provisions of section 14 of the Bill in whole or in part:

"And to recommend that pursuant to the 'Constitutional Questions Determination Act' there be referred to the Court of Appeal for hearing and consideration the following question: 'Is section 14 of Bill 55, entitled "An Act to amend the "Vancouver Charter,"" or any of the provisions thereof, and in what particular or particulars, or to what extent, intra vires the Legislature of the Province?'

"Dated this 25th day of February, A.D. 1958.

"R. W. BONNER,
"Attorney-General.

"Approved this 25th day of February, A.D. 1958.

"W. A. C. BENNETT,
"Presiding Member of the Executive Council."

The question set out at the conclusion thereof was referred to this Court under the "Constitutional Questions Determination Act," chapter 66, R.S.B.C. 1948, for hearing and determination as to its constitutional validity in whole or in part.

It concerns the constitutional validity of section 14 of the amendment to the "Vancouver Charter" as therein described relating to Sunday baseball in the City of Vancouver in the terms and manner set out in the said section 14.

The constitutional validity of said section 14 was supported by Senator the Hon. J. W. de B. Farris, Q.C., counsel for Vancouver Mounties Holdings Limited (who operate a baseball team in the Pacific Coast League), by Mr. R. K. Baker, counsel for the City of Vancouver, and by Mr. Gilbert D. Hogg, counsel on behalf of the Honourable the Attorney-General for British Columbia, who did not deliver argument but supported the submissions made in argument by Senator the Hon. J. W. de B. Farris, Q.C.

The constitutional validity of said section 14 was questioned by Mr. R. J. McMaster, counsel for the Lord's Day Alliance. Pursuant to section 6 of the "Constitutional Questions Determination Act," this Court made an order on the 8th April, 1958, appointing Senator the Hon. J. W. de B. Farris, Q.C., to represent in addition all persons supporting the said section 14, and at the same time this Court appointed Mr. R. J. McMaster to represent in addition all parties opposing the constitutional validity of section 14. The Attorney-General of Canada did not appear, although duly served.

It is our judgment with deference that the constitutional validity of the non-prohibitory legislation which is the subject-matter of this reference fails to be determined by high judicial reasoning progressing through the Hamilton Street Railway Case in 1903 (A.G. for Ontario v. Hamilton Street Railway Co. & Others 1903), 72 L.J.P.C. 105); the Dominion legislation concerning the observance of Sunday enacted for the first time by Parliament in 1906; the Manitoba Excursions Case in 1925 (Lord's Day Alliance of Canada v. A.G. for Manitoba and A.G. for Canada Intervening (1925), 94 L.J.P.C. 84); The Salmon Fisheries Case in 1930 (A.G. for Canada v. A.G. for British Columbia (1930) A.C. 111); until the passing of the B.C. Provincial "Sunday Observance Act" of 1948; and sections 7 and 8 of the new Canadian Criminal Code which came into force in 1955.

The three-day argument in this Court touched upon divergent and diversified submissions concerning collateral, supplemental, and consequential issues; but in our view, with respect, the hard core of the determinative and decisive judicial reasoning pursued and now pursued through the above decisions and Statutes disposes in itself of all relevant aspects of Dominion and Provincial competency respecting the constitutional validity of the legislation with which this reference is now concerned. The power to pass the legislation now under review must, under the B.N.A. Act, lie in either the Dominion or the Provinces or in co-ordinating legislation enacted by both Dominion and Province, each acting within its respective competency. As we see it, no room now exists for any conflict between the powers of the Dominion and the Provinces in the non-prohibitory legislation now under review.

Beginning with the Hamilton Street Railway case in 1903: After Confederation in 1867, Ontario and other Provinces enacted Provincial legislation governing the observance of Sunday within their respective provinces, including provisions prohibiting the doing of specific things on Sunday with appropriate penalties for infraction thereof. Ontario's legislation, among many other things, prohibited the playing of "ball, football, racquets, or any other noisy game," and "Sunday excursions by steamboat or railway." The constitutional validity of the Ontario legislation was questioned in the Courts, and although upheld in the Ontario Appellate Court, was held ultra vires the Province in the Judicial Committee in 1903. The Board then consisted of the Earl of Halsbury (Lord Chancellor), Lord Macnaughten, Lord Shand, Lord Davey, Lord Robertson, and Lord Lindley; no Canadian Judge sat on the Board on this occasion. The Earl of Halsbury, who gave the reasons of the Board, said that the Ontario legislation (in operation at the time of Confederation, save for some subsequent Provincial amendments) "treated as a whole," came within the sphere of criminal law in which the Dominion possessed sole jurisdiction under the B.N.A. Act.

The reasons of the Judicial Committee were very brief: it held the legislation was criminal legislation "in its widest sense" within the B.N.A. Act. Upon argument in the Liquor Prohibition Appeal, 1895 (1896) A.C. 348, Lord Herschell is reported as remarking on head 27 of section 91 (see Lefroy's Canada's Federal System, 1913, p. 320):—

It is all the criminal law in the widest and fullest sense, except that part of it which is necessary for the purpose of enforcing, whether by fine, penalty, or imprisonment, any of the laws validly made under the sixteen clauses under which laws are to be made by the Provincial Parliament.

The Judicial Committee seems to have considered that, notwithstanding its reversal of the Ontario Appellate Court decision (1902, 1 O.W.R. 312), and what it described as protracted argument before the Board, the conclusion was so clear in itself that no explanatory reasons were needed for the decision.

This was amplified by the reasoning of the Supreme Court of Canada (Sir Charles Fitzpatrick, C.J.C., Davies, Idington, Duff, Anglin, and Brodeur, J.J., with Idington and Brodeur, J.J., dissenting) in Ouimet v. Bazin (1912) 46 S.C.R. 502, wherein was considered a Provincial enactment of Quebec that (section 2)—

No person shall, on Sunday, for gain, except in cases of necessity or urgency, do or cause to be done any industrial work, or pursue any business or calling, or give or organize theatrical performances, or excursions where intoxicating liquors are sold, or take part in or be present at such theatrical performances, or excursions.

Sections 3 and 4 provided for punishment for offences against said section 2. The Hamilton Street Railway case was followed, and the Quebec legislation held ultra vires the Province, in that it purported to create offences against the criminal law and did not come within heads 8, 13, or 16 of section 92 of the B.N.A. Act as local, municipal, or police regulations, and also in that it derived no constitutional validity from the exceptive provisions of the Dominion Lord's Day Act, 1906, shortly referred to, which exceptive provisions as Anglin, J., pointed out inferentially (p. 531) contained no prohibitory provisions.

The result called for Dominion legislation, and it came with the Dominion Lord's Day Act of 1906 (carried forward to the present day in chapter 171, R.S.C. 1952); it was the first time the Dominion entered the field of Sunday legislation. But it did so with exceptive provisions that acknowledged certain jurisdiction in the Provinces at least until the Dominion decided to enter the field covered by the exceptions. In short, as we interpret it, the Dominion made no claim to complete jurisdiction over Sunday observance as such (it has no specific jurisdiction as such under the B.N.A. Act), particularly wherein it was not prohibitory, but it entered the Sunday observance field only in so far as it considered that the manner in which Sunday was observed could properly be regarded as part of the criminal law.

This is said because the exceptive provisions preserved the jurisdiction of the Provinces to legislate for what the Dominion regarded as the non-criminal aspects under property and civil rights (in its "largest sense" see Citizen's Insurance Co. v. Parsons (1881) 51 L.J.P.C. at p. 18, and Reference re Natural Products Acts (1936) S.C.R. at p. 416) and under Matters of a Merely Local or Private Nature in the Province. In respect to these Provincial powers it is noted that under head 15 of section 92 there is vested in the Provinces the power for imposition of punishment by fine, penalty, or imprisonment for enforcing any law of the Province made in relation to any matter coming within any of the classes of subjects enumerated in section 92, and see Ouimet v. Bazin (supra).

In our opinion, with respect, the foregoing reasoning becomes clear in reading sections 4, 6, and 7 of the Dominion Lord's Day Act (now set out) of chapter 171, R.S.C. 1952, which carried forward the effective provisions of the 1906 Dominion Lord's Day Act, confirmed as it is by the explanatory reasoning of Lord Blanesburgh speaking for the Judicial Committee in the Manitoba Excursions case. Sections 4, 6, and 7 of the Dominion Lord's Day Act, chapter 171, R.S.C. 1952, read as follows, the exceptions being in italic:—

Section 4: It is not lawful for any person on the Lord's Day, except as provided herein, or in any provincial Act or law now or hereafter in force, to sell or offer for sale or purchase any goods, chattels, or other personal property, or any real estate, or to carry on or transact any business of his ordinary calling, or in connection with such calling, or for gain to do, or employ any other person to do, on that day, any work, business or labour.

Section 6: (1) It is not lawful for any person, on the Lord's Day, except as provided in any provincial Act or law now or hereafter in force, to engage in any public game or contest for gain, or for any prize or reward, or to be present thereat, or to provide, engage in, or be present at any performance or public meeting, elsewhere than in a church, at which any fee is charged, directly or indirectly, either for admission to such performance or meeting, or to any place within which the same is provided, or for any service or privilege thereat.

(2) When any performance at which an admission fee or any other fee is so charged is provided in any building or place to which persons are conveyed for hire by the proprietors or managers of such performance or by any one acting as their agent or under their control, the charge for such conveyance shall be deemed an indirect payment of such fee within the meaning of this section.

Section 7: It is not lawful for any person on the Lord's Day, except as provided by any provincial Act or law now or hereafter in force, to run, conduct, or convey by any mode of conveyance any excursion on which passengers are conveyed for hire, and having for its principal or only object the carriage on that day of such passengers for amusement or pleasure, and passengers so conveyed shall not be deemed to be travellers within the meaning of this Act.

The present case has much in common with what occurred in the Manitoba Excursions case. Here the provincial Sunday sport legislation under review comes within the specific exception in section 6 above set out of the Lord's Day Act, chapter 171, R.S.C. 1952. In the Manitoba Excursions case the Provincial legislation in respect to Sunday train excursions came specifically within the exception of section 7.

In order to appreciate the full significance of the exceptive words in section 6, applicable here, as well as section 7 of the Lord's Day Act, namely the words "except as provided in any Provincial Act or law now or hereafter in force," Lord Blanesburgh, speaking in the Manitoba Excursions case for the Judicial Committee consisting of Viscount Cave, Lord Dunedin, Lord Carson, Lord Blanesburgh, and Mr. Justice Duff of Canada, said (pp. 89, 90) that for many years after Confederation in 1867 it was apparently assumed that observance of Sunday was exclusively within the jurisdiction of the Provinces under section 92 of the B.N.A. Act, namely, under head 13 concerning civil rights, and head 16 concerning matters of merely local or private nature in the Province, and that proper penalties for non-observance could be imposed by Provincial legislation under head 15 of section 92.

Lord Blanesburgh said that "so widely held" was this view that the Dominion had never enacted any legislation upon Sunday observance while many of the Provinces did so, laying down rules of conduct on that day and imposing appropriate penalties for non-observance.

Lord Blanesburgh, having said that this view was completely altered by the decision of the Judicial Committee in the Hamilton Street Railway case in 1903, which held an infraction of Sunday observance was an offence under the criminal law within the sole jurisdiction of the Dominion, head 27 of section 91, then proceeded to examine closely the excepted provisions above quoted of the Dominion Lord's Day Act, and said, page 90:—

The circumstances calling for the Act [our note: Dominion Lord's Day Act] supply clearly enough the explanation of its content. The Act is laying down for the whole of Canada regulations for the observance of Sunday. Some things on that day are everywhere prohibited; others are everywhere allowed. But there is an intermediate class of activities—Sunday excursions are amongst them—with reference to which the Act recognises that differing views may prevail in the respective provinces of the Dominion, so varying in these provinces are the circumstances, usages and predominant religious beliefs of the people. The Act proceeds to provide accordingly, putting it generally, that with reference to these matters [our note: the exceptive provisions] provincial views shall within a province prevail. As Anglin, J., observed in Ouimet v. Bazin (46 S.C.R. at p. 530), this course was no doubt adopted "to enable local bodies to deal with the peculiar requirements of localities with which they would presumably be more familiar and perhaps more in sympathy."

There is therefore reserved to each province power in these intermediate cases by, inter alia, "A Provincial Act . . . hereafter in force" to exempt that province from the operation of the general prohibition in whole or in part.

Lord Blanesburgh, in upholding the constitutional validity of the Manitoba legislation, proceeded to distinguish the Hamilton Street Railway case. His Lordship said, page 91, the Board there was dealing with the Ontario Statute "as a whole," namely, as an Act which "created offences and imposed criminal law," and continued on page 91:—

But the Board was not considering the power of a Provincial Legislature to recognise what may be called the non-observance of Sunday, as distinct from its assumption of power to enforce by penalties or punishment the observance of that day, and the two things are very different. Legislative permission to do on Sunday things or acts which persons of stricter sabbatarian views might regard as Sabbath-breaking is no part of the criminal law, where the acts and things permitted had not previously been prohibited. Such permission might aptly enough be described as a matter affecting "Civil Rights in the Province," or as one of "a merely local nature in the Province."

Lord Blanesburgh proceeded:—

The borderline between the profanation of Sunday—which might, at common law, be regarded as an offence and, therefore, within the criminal law—and the not irrational observance of the day is very indistinct. It is a question with reference to which there may be infinite diversity of opinion. Legislative permission to do on Sunday a particular act or thing may, therefore, amount to a useful pronouncement that, within the province, the acts permitted are on the one side of the line, and not on the other.

The words "permissible" and "permission" used in Lord Blanesburgh's reasoning perhaps require more detailed examination. We cannot think that these words may be read in a sense that would permit the Provinces to do something which otherwise they have no jurisdiction to do under the Provincial powers contained in the B.N.A. Act. We think Lord Blanesburgh must have meant that the "permission" did not refer to a power to do what is denied by the B.N.A. Act's limitation of Provincial power. This seems to be established clearly by His Lordship's quotation at page 91 of this excerpt from the judgment of Mr. Justice Duff in Ouimet v. Bazin (supra) at page 526:—

This latter enactment [our note: namely, the exceptive portion] appears to be framed upon the theory that the Provinces may pass laws governing the conduct of people on Sunday; and by the express provisions of the Act such laws, if in force when the Act became law, are not to be affected by it. That is a very different thing from saying that in this Act the Dominion Parliament has manifested an intention to give the force of law to legislation passed by a Provincial legislature professing to do what a Province under its own powers of legislation cannot do, viz., to create an offence against the criminal law within the meaning of the enactment of the British North America Act already referred to.

In the case at bar, it is important to note, as emphasized by counsel supporting the constitutional validity of the legislation, that no penalties or sanctions are imposed.

The same principle [our note: there referred to by Mr. Justice Duff just quoted], however, as it seems to the Board, must apply to provincial statutes subsequently enacted. That the Parliament of Canada so intended is clear from the language which it has used, and there seems to be no valid reason why that intention should not have effect. The Dominion Legislature, of course, may at any moment by prohibiting Sunday excursions under appropriate sanctions bring them within the domain of the criminal law, and thereby at once withdraw such activities entirely from the cognisance of the legislature of any province. But what the Parliament of Canada may do in this matter it may also forbear to do, and permissive [our note: see previous observation on the use of this word] provincial legislation effective for its purpose, because the Parliament of Canada has not previously intervened at all. . . . In each case the Provincial Legislature is exercising a power which, in the one case by silence, and in the other case in words, the Parliament of Canada has left intact."

This reasoning was amplified incisively in the Salmon Fisheries case (1930) A.C. 111, supra; and expanded by Fauteux, J., in Birks v. City of Montreal (1955) S.C.R. 799 at 809-11; in short, that until the Dominion itself occupies the field, by prohibiting under sanctions types of non-observance of Sunday, the circumstances in a particular Province may be such that under its "civil rights" or "merely local or private nature" jurisdiction it may be essential for the Province to legislate in non-criminal aspects (in this case permissive aspects) of Sunday observance.

The ratio of Lord Blanesburgh's reasons in the 1925 Manitoba Excursions case clarifies the legal position where, as in the Manitoba case, there was applicable prohibitory legislation prior to the Dominion Lord's Day Act Section 15 of the latter Statute provides, "Nothing herein shall be construed to repeal or in any way affect any provisions of any act or law relating in any way to the observance of the Lord's Day in force in any Province of Canada when this Act comes into force . . .".

But it is argued that the present British Columbia legislation is clearly distinguishable because it is said there was criminal law legislation in British Columbia prior to Confederation which, by reason of the above-mentioned section 15 of the Dominion Lord's Day Act, necessarily excludes the operation of the exceptive provisions found in sections 4, 6, and 7 of the said Dominion Lord's Day Act.

In our judgment, with deference it must be conceded that there was criminal law legislation in British Columbia prior to the entry of the Province into Confederation in 1871, such as a 1676 Statute for the better observance of Sunday (chapter 7 of 29 Charles II) and particularly an Act of Great Britain in 1781 directed to prevention of certain abuses and profanations of Sunday (chapter 49 of 20-1 George III), section 1 thereof reading in relevant part:—

From and after the passing of this present Act any house, room or other place which shall be opened or used for publick entertainment or amusement, or for publicly debating on any subject whatsoever, upon any part of the Lord's Day, called Sunday, and to which persons shall be admitted by the payment of money or by tickets sold for money, shall be deemed a disorderly house or place; and the keeper of such house, room or place shall forfeit the sum of two hundred pounds for every day that such house, room or place shall be opened or used as aforesaid on the Lord's Day, to such person as will sue for the same, and be otherwise punishable as the law directs in cases of disorderly houses . . .

Section 11 of the Canadian Criminal Code, reading:

The criminal law of England as it existed on the nineteenth day of November, one thousand eight hundred and fifty-eight, in so far as it has not been repealed by any ordinance or Act, still having the force of law, of the colony of British Columbia, or the colony of Vancouver Island, passed before the union of the said colonies, or of the colony of British Columbia passed since such union, or by this Act or any other Act of the Parliament of Canada, and as altered, varied, modified or affected by any such ordinance or Act, shall be the criminal law of the province of British Columbia.

was in force until its repeal in 1955 by section 745 of the new Canadian Criminal Code, chapter 51 of the Statutes of Canada 1953-54, proclaimed in force as of 1st April, 1955.

The British Columbia "Sunday Observance Act," chapter 318, R.S.B.C. 1948, purported to make the law with respect to Sunday observance in force in England on the 19th day of November, 1858, applicable to the Province of British Columbia. Since the Provincial Legislature has no power to legislate with respect to criminal law, which is reserved for the exclusive authority of the Dominion Parliament, this British Columbia Statute must be considered ultra vires the Province. It was so conceded by counsel for the Lord's Day Alliance in the argument before this Court.

It is our judgment, with deference, that the legal effect of sections 7 and 8 of the new Canadian Criminal Code, brought into force in 1955, is that the criminal law in force in British Columbia prior to Confederation is no longer in effect. Said sections 7 and 8 read as follows:—

7. (1) The criminal law of England that was in force in a province immediately before the coming into force of this Act continues in force in the province except as altered, varied, modified or affected by this Act or any other Act of the Parliament of Canada.

(2) Every rule and principle of the common law that renders any circumstance a justification or excuse for an act or a defence to a charge continues in force and applies in respect of proceedings for an offence under this Act or any other Act of the Parliament of Canada, except in so far as they are altered by or are inconsistent with this Act or any other Act of the Parliament of Canada.

8. Notwithstanding anything in this Act or any other Act, no person shall be convicted

(a) of an offence at common law,

(b) of an offence under an Act of the Parliament of England, or of Great Britain, or of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, or

(c) of an offence under an Act or Ordinance in force in any province, territory or place before that province, territory or place became a province of Canada.

Said section 7 purports to retain the criminal law of England that was in force in a Province immediately before the coming into force of the new Criminal Code except as altered, varied, modified, or affected by that Act, or by any other Act of the Dominion Parliament. Section 8 provides that notwithstanding anything in the new Code, or in any other Act, no person shall be convicted:—

(b) of an offence under an Act of the Parliament of England, or of Great Britain, or of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, or

It seems plain there cannot be a criminal offence in Canada for the doing of an act or for the omission to do an act where the Canadian Criminal Code provides there cannot be a conviction for the doing of that act or the omission to do an act. And see P.A.T.A. v. A.G. for Canada (1931) A.C. 310, Lord Atkin at page 323:—

and if Parliament genuinely determines that commercial activities which can be so described are to be suppressed in the public interest, their Lordships see no reason why Parliament should not make them crimes. "Criminal law" means "the criminal law in its widest sense": A.G. for Ontario v. Hamilton Street Railway Company. It certainly is not confined to what was criminal by the law of England or of any Province in 1867. . . . Criminal law connotes only the quality of such acts or omissions as are prohibited under appropriate penal provisions by authority of the State. The criminal quality of an act cannot be discerned by intuition; nor can it be discovered by reference to any standard but one: Is the act prohibited with penal consequences? Morality and criminality are far from co-extensive; nor is the sphere of criminality necessarily part of a more extensive field covered by morality—unless the moral code necessarily disapproves all acts prohibited by the State, in which case the argument moves in a circle. It appears to their Lordships to be of little value to seek to confine crimes to a category of acts which by their very nature belong to the domain of "criminal jurisprudence"; for the domain of criminal jurisprudence can only be ascertained by examining what acts at any particular period are declared by the State to be crimes, and the only common nature they will be found to possess is that they are prohibited by the State and that those who commit them are punished.

See also Laskin's Canadian Constitutional Law, 1951, at page 493, and Birks v. City of Montreal (supra) at page 810.

Since under the new Criminal Code persons can no longer be convicted and punished in British Columbia for violation of those early English Statutes against profanation of the Lord's Day, such Statutes have certainly been repealed in their criminal aspects, leaving the Lord's Day Act as the only criminal law on the subject. Thus the legally significant facts in the Manitoba Excursions case are reproduced in the case at bar.

It was suggested in argument that section 14 of Bill 55 (chapter 72 of the Statutes of British Columbia, 1958), when proclaimed, would not be a Provincial Act or law within the meaning of section 6 of the Lord's Day Act because it depends for its effect, not on the action of the Provincial Legislature alone, but on the concurrence of the City Council. If the legislative authority of the Provincial Legislature on that subject had been delegated to it by the Parliament of Canada under section 6 of the Lord's Day Act, it might have been argued that the Legislature could not further delegate that authority. However, the authority of the Legislature is not a delegated authority, but, as already said, the plenary authority under the B.N.A. Act to legislate upon matters of civil rights or of a merely local or private nature in the Province, and in such cases the Legislature may delegate authority to its own municipal creatures. A Provincial Act becoming effective upon passage of a municipal by-law in accordance with its term is, in our opinion, a Provincial law within the meaning of section 6 of the Lord's Day Act.

That was the view expressed by Denistoun, J.A., in Rex v. Thompson (1931) 1 W.W.R. 26 at page 30:—

The word "law" was harder to define and at first sight appeared to mean common law as held in Cote v. Friesen, supra, but several arguments on the point, and further consideration, lead to the conclusion that what Parliament had in mind was something in the nature of a statute which permitted an act to be done on Sunday, after the passing of an order in council, or a municipal by-law, or a regulation by a public commission, which made the statute operative and effective.

Finally the argument that section 14 of Bill 55 invades the field of criminal law may, in our respectful opinion, be disposed of by the following reasoning of Rinfet, C.J.C., for himself and Crockett and Kerwin, J.J. by which he disposed of a similar objection in Provincial Secretary of Prince Edward Island v. Egan (1941) S.C.R. 396 at page 415:—

But section 84 of The Highway Traffic Act of Prince Edward Island, dealing with the case of its own licensees upon the territory of its own Province, provides that a person convicted of driving while intoxicated loses his provincial license, either for a time or forever (in the case of a third offence). It does not create an offence; it does not add to or vary the punishment already declared by the Criminal Code; it does not change or vary the procedure to be followed in the enforcement of any provision of the Criminal Code. It deals purely and simply with certain civil rights in the Province of Prince Edward Island.

The other members of the Court reached the same conclusion by similar reasoning somewhat differently expressed.

With respect to the legislation before us, not only does it not purport to create any offence, being entirely permissive, but it does not repeal or affect any offence enacted by the Parliament of Canada in the Lord's Day Act. It is the Canadian Parliament itself which by the language of the Lord's Day Act has removed conduct permitted by Provincial law from the purview of the Act and the realm of criminal law. In effect Parliament has said by the exceptive provisions that conduct permitted by Provincial law does not constitute a crime against the state and require to be punished as such; that it is only conduct of the kind specified that is not permitted under Provincial law which so offends and requires to be punished, and so requires the exercise of Parliament's exclusive authority over criminal law.

In accordance with the provisions of the "Constitutional Questions Determination Act," chapter 66, R.S.B.C. 1948, we, the undersigned Justices of Appeal (O'Halloran, Bird, and Davey, J.J.), do hereby individually certify to His Honour the Lieutenant-Governor in Council that in our opinion each of us, for the reasons herein contained, that the Provincial legislation referred to this Court in this Reference is intra vires in its entirety.

Reasons for the Opinion of the Honourable Mr. Justice Sidney Smith

This reference asks us to pass on the validity of an amendment to the Vancouver City Charter passed this year by the Provincial Legislature. The amendment purports to permit a number of Sunday sporting activities in the city which were formerly forbidden, provided the city pass a by-law adopting the amendment.

It was recognized before us that one of the main objects of the amendment is to legalize professional Sunday baseball; indeed, the main argument presented to us for upholding the amendment was made by counsel for the owners of the professional baseball club in Vancouver. But the amendment would affect other Sunday activities also during stated hours in the afternoon.

It may be well at the outset to set out the chief authorities:—

A.G. for Ontario v. The Hamilton Street Railway Co. (1903) A.C. 524.

Proprietary Articles Trade Ass'n v. A.G. for Canada (1931) A.C. 310.

The question involved at first sight looks simple though it proves otherwise. The Lord's Day Act, R.S.C. 1952, chapter 171, which was first passed in 1906, by a number of sections prohibits a great many forms of business and pastimes on Sunday; but the sections also modify their prohibitions by the words "except as provided herein, or in any provincial Act or law now or hereafter in force."

The question is whether the amendment referred to us is such a saving Provincial Act and whether it is intra vires of the Province.

Until 1906 there was no Dominion legislation on Sunday observance. Several of the Provinces had passed laws prohibiting Sunday activities, but no serious challenge of these was made until 1903, when the Privy Council, reversing the Ontario Court of Appeal, held in the Hamilton Street Railway case that an Ontario Act generally covering Sunday observance was ultra vires as being essentially criminal legislation competent only for the Dominion. Since the Province has express power to pass criminal legislation concerning matters expressly committed to it by section 92 (15) of the British North America Act, and the most important of these matters are:—

"(13) Property and civil rights in the Province:

"(16) Generally all matters of a merely local or private nature in the Province," the Privy Council decision clearly involved the proposition that Sunday observance is neither a matter of property and civil rights nor a matter of a merely private or local nature.

The Privy Council's views were followed by the Supreme Court of Canada in the Sunday Labour case, Ouimet v. Bazin (supra), and other cases; and more recently in Henry Birks & Sons (Montreal) Ltd. case.

Following, and possibly as a result of the decisions in the Hamilton Street Railway case and the Sunday Labour case, the Dominion passed the Lord's Day Act in 1906. One might guess that the Dominion entered into the field reluctantly and because compelled to do so by the decisions of the Courts; and it certainly seems to have attempted to put back as much responsibility as possible on the Provinces by the exception above mentioned. How it did so is, however, the question, and on this point Clement's Canadian Constitution (1916), page 380, thinks it failed.

It seems odd that the Dominion should have attempted to give back to the Provinces a jurisdiction that the Courts had held they did not possess, especially when the law had been so recently laid down. I personally have no doubt that Parliament had every intention of delegating legislative powers to the Provinces; at that date no serious doubts existed as to the power to do so, and for some years later it was assumed that this was not objectionable. However, the Supreme Court of Canada in the Nova Scotia case has clearly held that the Dominion cannot delegate legislative powers to the Provinces. If the legislation now before us is to be upheld it must be on some other ground than delegation by the Lord's Day Act. Of course, I recognize that even if delegation was intended that intention would not invalidate our amendment if it is justifiable on some better ground.

Apart from the decision of the Manitoba Court of Appeal in Re Act to amend the Lord's Day Act, affirmed by the Privy Council sub nom Lord's Day Alliance of Canada v. A.G. for Manitoba (supra) (which I shall refer to as the Sunday Excursion case), I should have little hesitation in holding that this 1958 Act is ultra vires. The heart of the matter is the division between the Dominion and the Provinces of power to enact criminal law. "The British North America Act, 1867," section 91 (27), gives the Dominion exclusive jurisdiction over "criminal law," whereas section 92 (15) gives the Provinces exclusive jurisdiction over "the imposition of punishment by fine, penalty, or imprisonment for enforcing any law of the Province made in relation to any matter coming within any of the classes of subjects enumerated in this section." It will be noted that this provision does not use the words "crime" or "criminal"; and largely for this reason many judges, particularly before the turn of the century, tended to use language distinguishing between section 91 (27) and section 92 (15) on the basis that the former dealt with "crime" but not the latter. Several suggested that the first class dealt with "crime in the strict sense" and the latter with something like quasi-crimes. This language seems to me quite misleading, and it seems to be falling into disuse. Many now do not hesitate to use the expression "Provincial crimes," and I think rightly so. It was laid down by Lord Atkin in the Proprietary Articles case, at page 324, that the test whether an act is criminal is to ask, "Is the act prohibited with legal consequences?" For the reasons I will give later, I think I would prefer, "Is the act made unlawful by the doer being subjected to penalties?" But at all events we can take it that the old ideas of malum in se and malum prohibitum are exploded and the test adopted applies just as much to crimes under Provincial as under Dominion Acts. So I think it misleading to speak of "crimes" or "criminal law in the strict sense" to denote what comes under section 91 (27). For present purposes I propose to use the terms "Dominion crimes" and "Provincial crimes" as more serviceable. I think far too much has been made in this case, as well as in the Sunday Excursions case, of the form that legislation takes as the test whether it is criminal legislation. It has been emphasized that the 1958 amendment is enabling and not prohibitory, the inference being that only prohibitory legislation can be criminal. That argument seems to me unsound, though it is given some colour by Lord Atkin's language just cited.

He, however, was directing his mind to a point that does not arise here. It is clearly impossible to support the idea that criminal legislation must take the form of prohibitions. One need only to look through the Code to see that it deals with most offences, not by prohibiting them, but by merely defining them and stating the penalties for committing them. Another form of criminal legislation has been in common use for centuries; the Legislature orders some particular form of conduct and penalizes anyone who fails to observe it. One example is section 186 of the Code, declaring the duty to provide necessities of life to a wife or dependents and penalizing default.

In an Act governing motor-cars would anyone suggest that there is any real difference between a section prohibiting driving at a certain speed and one requiring all to observe another speed-limit? Clearly not. These considerations make it obvious to me that a prohibitory form means next to nothing in deciding whether legislation is criminal. We must look entirely to the substance, not the form; and the substance may have to be learned from extrinsic facts.

An enactment repealing criminal legislation may not contain a prohibitory word, but it does not seem to me arguable that it is not criminal legislation. So equally with an amendment to a criminal law. I cannot believe that it makes any difference whether the repeal or amendment is effected expressly or by inference. It may be made by repugnant legislation, without the slightest reference to the Act being repealed. And it seems to me to go without saying that a Legislature that cannot repeal an Act expressly cannot repeal it inferentially or by repugnant legislation. In the case where an Act prohibits with penalties driving a car at a certain speed and then, without reference to this, there is an independent enactment that thereafter such speeds shall be lawful, can anyone doubt that that is a repeal of the former Act, and that if an express repeal would have been ultra vires the implied repeal would also be ultra vires?

For me these considerations point to fallacy in the argument of those supporting the amendment. The argument was that because the Provincial Act did not attempt an express repeal of section 6 of the Dominion Lord's Day Act, but followed a positive form of legislation, that form made all the difference, so that the Provincial Act was intra vires. If the Dominion Act had made no exception of future Provincial legislation professing to allow those to undo the Dominion legislation, the fallacy would have been obvious. But this exception presupposed valid Provincial legislation. Could it be valid? And how?

I think it worth while to examine the reasons of the Manitoba Judges in the Sunday Excursions case, which declared by an Act of 1923 that Sunday excursions should thereafter be lawful because, although we have the later reasons of the Privy Council, the Judges' reasons carry similar ideas to their logical conclusion more boldly and seem to me to bring out more clearly the weakness in the result arrived at.

Most of the Manitoba Judges, though they also gave several other reasons, held that the 1923 Act could be justified as the exercise of legislative power delegated by the Dominion to the Province under the Lord's Day Act. At this date it seems obvious that the basis for the decision was quite unsupportable, so I pass on to the other reasons given. Perdue, C.J.M., (1923) 2 W.W.R., at page 528, said:—

In section 1A of an Act to amend The Lord's Day Act submitted in this case, there is nothing prohibitive and therefore it does not attempt to invade the exclusive jurisdiction of Parliament over criminal law.

It seems to me, with respect, that the Manitoba Act of 1923 did attempt to invade Dominion criminal law; it sought to repeal section 8 of the Lord's Day Act by passing repugnant legislation. No doubt the Province thought it was given power of repeal, but the power was invalid.

Dennistoun, J.A., (ibid.), at page 533, said:—

By this legislation the Dominion says, in effect, we will occupy the field of overlapping jurisdiction in respect to Sunday observance by a general Act, but in case any province shall at any time lawfully occupy the same field we will not insist upon our overriding rights, i.e., the right to have our law declared superior to the law of the province, but will withdraw the operation of our law from that field, leaving the provincial law as the sole and unchallenged occupant thereof.

I think that this reasoning assumes that the Province could "lawfully occupy the same field," which I consider it could not once the Dominion Act was in it. Moreover, even if it could, the reasoning contemplates the Provinces' repealing the Dominion Act pro tanto. The learned Judge, it is true, denies that repeal is intended (p. 533):—

There is no suggestion that the province is either to pass, or to repeal, a criminal law. The Dominion is content to say to the province, "when you pass a civil law which conflicts with our criminal law, we will respect your law, and withdraw our own."

Since the Dominion did not propose to do anything subsequent to the original Act, by way of withdrawal, this, in my opinion, means that the Dominion was empowering the Provinces to repeal this Act. Furthermore, I would deny that in the circumstances the Provincial Act would be a "civil law" when it was dealing with a criminal offence.

Dennistoun, J.A., went on to add (p. 534):—

And there is the additional argument that if there be neither "delegation" nor "adoption" there may be legislation by "reference"—that the Dominion may say, "when you want to know what our law is in respect to Sunday excursions, look at the law of the province, and what you find there is what we intend now to enact."

This may be so if the Dominion had referred only to existing Provincial law; but it did not. Reference to existing legislation would make the Dominion's what was already fixed and adopted as the Dominion's; but to apply this process to the future legislation of another body is enabling that other body to use the Dominion's powers and do its legislating. That is only another name for delegation; a fact which Prendergast, J.A., recognized in the same case at page 535. He incidentally thought delegation quite valid.

Some of the Court also put their decision on the ground that when the Lord's Day Act excepted Sunday activities then valid by Provincial "law," this included the common law of Manitoba. Later, however, in R. v. Thompson (1931) 1 W.W.R. 26, the same Court recanted this view and conceded that it was wrong.

When the case reached the Judicial Committee, consideration was given as to whether Sunday excursions had been illegal before the Lord's Day Act. It was held that they had not. I have difficulty in seeing that this conclusion advanced the matter at all. His Lordship, however, as I understand him, reasoned that because the Province before the Lord's Day Act could enact that Sunday excursions were lawful and this would then be legislation on "civil rights," equally if it passed the same legislation after the Lord's Day Act this must still be civil legislation. I have equal difficulty as to this. Is it not like saying that an Act legalizing a certain speed is always civil legislation regardless of whether there is a previous Act making such speed an offence?

His Lordship went on:—

The Dominion Legislature of course may at any moment by prohibiting Sunday excursions under appropriate sanctions bring these within the domain of the criminal law and thereby at once withdraw such activities entirely from the cognizance of the Legislature of any Province. But what the Parliament of Canada may do in this matter it may also forbear to do, and permissive Provincial legislation effective for its purpose, because the Parliament of Canada has not previously intervened at all, can be no less effective after such intervention if by its very terms the previous liberty of the Provinces in this matter remains unaffected. In each case the Provincial Legislature is exercising a power which, in the one case by silence and in the other case in words, the Parliament of Canada has left intact.

It does not seem to me quite satisfactory to say that the Province's inherent right to legislate on Sunday excursions was the same before and after 1906. The reasoning would appear to overlook the fact that in 1906 the Dominion did pass an Act prohibiting Sunday excursions and making them criminal offences from 1906 to 1923; and anyone prosecuted between those dates for running an excursion must have been convicted. The Dominion did not "forbear" to make them offences. What it did do was to make them offences but imply that the Provinces could later take them out of the criminal category. But did that implication have any effect? Did the Provincial power that it professed to recognize exist? Just what was the power? I have no doubt at all that the Dominion was assuming that the Province could repeal its enactment that to run Sunday excursions was a crime. In view of the Judicial Committee's decision in 1903 and that of the Supreme Court of Canada in 1905 the Dominion Legislature must have been very conscious that Sunday observance was decidedly a matter for its own legislation. How could it have supposed that the Province could repeal this even in part? There can, I think, be only one answer to that. I cannot doubt that the Dominion was attempting to give the necessary power to the Provinces. In no other way than by delegation could they do this. At that date the validity of such delegation had not been seriously questioned; I think it was generally assumed in legal circles.

There was indeed a disclaimer of Manitoba's power to legalize excursions on delegation. But with that source of its power removed, what was left? It was said in effect that the Dominion never affected the previous liberty of the Province to legislate on excursions. But if it did not do so in words, it did so even more effectively by making Sunday excursions a Dominion crime and thus removing them from Provincial cognizance. The Dominion thought that in removing them it was conferring on the Province power to retake cognizance; but it is submitted it could not give this power.

The fact that before 1906 excursions were lawful and that the Province could declare them lawful ceased to be relevant when the Lord's Day Act made them Dominion crimes until the Province should legalize them. This could only mean that the Province could repeal the Act pro tanto. This the Province could not do, since repeal of Dominion legislation was beyond its reach and, as subsequent decisions have held, its reach could not be increased in any way.

What was implicit in this reasoning was made explicit by Dennistoun, J.A., and when thus made explicit the situation is clarified. The Dominion plainly intended to do nothing to "withdraw" its legislation on excursions after the Province legislated on them; the legislation was to cease automatically when the Province acted; that meant that the Province was to have the power to end Dominion legislation when and where it chose without consulting the Dominion; that simply meant power to repeal a Dominion section. But no one can give this power. Neither could the Dominion say that a Provincial Act should override its own Act in a concurrent field, because the B.N.A. Act says that the Dominion Act must prevail in such a case. The Dominion Legislature could no more change than it could delegate openly.

Applying that reasoning to the present case, I conclude that the Lord's Day Act made criminal the Sunday activities that the 1958 amendment before us seeks to legalize. The 1958 Act is an attempt to repeal the Lord's Day Act pro tanto, which the Province cannot do. The assumption in the Dominion Act that the Province has the power has proved to be unfounded and had no legal effect.

The Sunday Excursions case was made upon a reference under a Constitutional Questions Act, and it seems to be settled that such decisions are not strictly binding on anyone. This influences me here. There is also the fact that that decision appears to be inconsistent with the Judicial Committee's earlier decision in the Hamilton Street Railway case, so that we must decline to follow one of its two decisions. The earlier case is strongly supported by many Supreme Court decisions, and I feel the weight of authority is entirely in its favour.

The argument before us dealt at length with the proposition that the Imperial Acts on Sunday observance adopted and set out in R.S.B.C. 1948, chapter 318, are inoperative and in effect repealed because of section 8 of the new Code. I express no opinion on that proposition, but assuming it is right I do not think it matters. The Lord's Day Act itself, in my view, invalidates the 1958 Act without help from the Sunday Observance Acts.

I also think we should hold the amendment ineffective on the short ground that it is not within the language of the exceptions repeated in the various sections in the Lord's Day Act. That Act prohibits certain acts "except as provided in any Provincial Act or law." It does not say "except as provided in any Provincial Act or municipal by-law." And in my view what amounts to a partial repeal of the Lord's Day Act is not meant to be effected by the Provincial amendment but in truth by the city by-law. It is the city that is given the say as to whether there shall be Sunday baseball and other Sunday activities. This is accentuated by the fact that the by-law once passed cannot be repealed until there has been a city plebiscite favouring its repeal. That means that it is not the Province and not even the City Council but the electors of Vancouver that wield the effective power as to Sunday observance. In my view it was not shown that that is a compliance with the exception clauses in the Lord's Day Act. The point was referred to briefly in argument; and those upholding the amendment stated, as their answer to the objection, that the by-law would not validate the Sunday activities but would merely bring the Provincial Act into effect. I do not understand this is a good answer; the substance of the matter is that the city has the final and decisive say, however the machinery is manipulated. Even if the legalizing of the Sunday activities were the joint responsibility of the city and Province, I would still be unconvinced that that would satisfy the exception clauses in the Lord's Day Act.

It is not a question whether ordinarily the Province can delegate legislative powers to a municipality; that, of course, is well recognized. Here we have a Dominion Act that contains a general prohibition of Sunday activities. It says in effect that Provincial legislation may repeal that prohibition; it does not say that municipal legislation authorized by the Province can repeal it; and the question whether in other cases the Province can delegate power is really irrelevant.

My opinion then is that the amendment is wholly ultra vires of the Province.

Vancouver, B.C., June 9th, 1958.

Reasons for the Opinion of the Honourable Mr. Justice Sheppard

Pursuant to the "Constitutional Questions Determination Act," R.S.B.C. 1948, chapter 66, the Lieutenant-Governor in Council has referred to this Court the question of the validity of section 14 of Bill 55 of the Legislature of British Columbia, being an "Act to amend the 'Vancouver Charter,'" "The Vancouver Incorporation Act, 1921," B.C. 1949, chapter 73.

Section 14 of Bill 55 purports to amend the "Vancouver Charter" by adding thereto section 206A, which in effect provides for Sunday sports and games in the City of Vancouver by authorizing that City Council to pass a by-law specifying the games and sports, other than horse-racing, that may be played, the parts of the city, and the hours between 1.30 and 6 p.m. in which the specified games and sports may be played.

It is common ground that the prohibitions of section 4 of the Lord's Day Act, R.S.C. 1952, chapter 171, against work, business, or labour on the Lord's Day and the prohibitions in section 6 against any public game or contest for gain, prize, or reward are valid enactments of Parliament within subsection (27) of section 91 of the B.N.A. Act (A.G. of Canada v. Hamilton Street Railway (1903) A.C. 524), and that those prohibitions of Parliament are paramount and in a case of conflict would override a Provincial enactment (Lord's Day Alliance of Canada v. A.G. of Manitoba (1925) A.C. 384 at page 394, A.G. of Ontario v. A.G. of Canada (1896) A.C. 348 at page 366).

The contention is that section 206A comes within the excepting provision of section 4 of the Lord's Day Act, which reads "except as provided . . . in any Provincial Act or law now or hereafter in force," and also within the similar excepting provision of section 6, which reads "except as provided in any Provincial Act or law now or hereafter in force." The words "in force" appearing in those excepting provisions require that "the Provincial Act or law" be validly enacted. That was stated in Lord's Day Alliance of Canada v. A.G. of Manitoba (supra) by Lord Blanesburgh at page 391, as follows: "If it is to be in force within the meaning of the reservation it must be one effectively enacted by the Provincial legislature"; and was stated in R. v. Laity (1913) 18 B.C.R. 443, by Hunter, C.J., at page 447, as follows: "The phrase 'in force' must mean 'validly in force' if such an expression is not really tautological." Section 206A to be valid must come within section 92 of the B.N.A. Act (Lord's Day Alliance of Canada v. A.G. of Manitoba (supra)). The excepting provisions of sections 4 and 6 of the Lord's Day Act cannot be construed as a valid delegation by Parliament to the Legislature (A.G. of Nova Scotia v. A.G. of Canada and Lord Nelson Hotel Co. Ltd. (1951) S.C.R. 31).

It is contended that section 206A is valid as permissive legislation with respect to Sunday observance and therefore within the competence of the Provincial Legislature as coming within section 92 of the B.N.A. Act as property and civil rights in the Province (92 (13)) or generally all matters of a merely local or private nature in the Province (92 (16)). That raises the question as to what is the real purpose and object of section 206A. The test adopted by Lord Blanesburgh in Lord's Day Alliance of Canada v. A.G. of Manitoba (supra), page 392, is as follows: ". . . whether or not it would have been within the competence of the Legislature of Manitoba effectively to enact it had there been on this subject of Sunday excursions no previous Dominion legislation at all." The answer to that question must be a matter of some difficulty in particular instances as to whether the Statute or by-law in question is directed to a Sunday observance or against profanation of the Lord's Day and therefore within the exclusive legislative jurisdiction of Parliament or, on the other hand, whether it is directed to the secular object of regulating certain businesses and therefore with section 92. In the following instances the particular Statute or by-law has been held within the exclusive jurisdiction of Parliament: Ouimet v. Bazin (1912) 46 S.C.R. 502, a Statute prohibiting theatrical performances on Sunday; La Corporation de la Paroisse de St. Prosper v. Rodrique (1912) 56 S.C.R. 157, a by-law prohibiting the opening of restaurants on Sundays and the sale therein of merchandise; Henry Birks & Sons (Montreal) Limited v. A.G. of Quebec (1955) S.C.R. 799, a Statute purporting to authorize councils of cities and towns to pass by-laws with respect to the closing of shops on feast days.

On the other hand, in the following instances the Statute or by-law has been held to come within the legislative competence of the Province under section 92. In R. v. Epstein (1931) O.R. 727 (by Rose, C.J.), a by-law requiring the closing of a miniature golf-course on Sunday was held to be valid as not dealing with the profanation of the Lord's Day but as regulating the business of a miniature golf-course. In Re Gregory and City of Hamilton (1942) 4 D.L.R. 735 (Ont. C.A.), a municipal by-law requiring moving-picture theatres to remain closed on Sundays was held to be valid as regulating moving-picture theatres. In R. v. Paling (Man. C.A.) (1946) 3 D.L.R. 54, a Provincial Statute prohibiting hunting on Sunday was held valid as a game-protection measure. In Henderson Thrift- way Petroleum Limited v. Reeves (1956) 3 D.L.R. 507 (Man. C.A.), a Provincial Statute authorizing early closing by-laws with respect to certain businesses, including gasoline-stations, was held valid as regulating the closing of shops and the employment of labour.

There is particular difficulty in assigning section 206A to section 92 of the B.N.A. Act by reason that the concluding words of 206A, subsection (1) (which follow in quotations) expressly declare the object of the enactment. Section 206A, subsection (1), provides in effect that where a by-law passed under subsection (2) is in force then it shall be lawful to provide for or engage in public game or sport "that is specified in such by-law and which, but for this section, would be unlawful under section 6 of 'The Lord's Day Act (Canada)' or to do or engage any other person to do any work, business, or labour in connection with any such public game or sport which but for this section would be unlawful under section 4 of 'The Lord's Day Act (Canada).'"

As declared by those concluding words, the purpose of the Legislature in enacting section 206A is to limit the prohibitions contained in sections 4 and 6 of the Lord's Day Act and as those prohibitions under the Lord's Day Act are within the exclusive legislative jurisdiction of Parliament (A.G. of Canada v. Hamilton Street Railway (supra), Lord's Day Alliance of Canada v. A.G. of Manitoba (supra)), therefore the amendment, whether by repeal or limitation of those prohibitions, must be equally within the exclusive jurisdiction of Parliament and outside the jurisdiction of the Legislature. In A.G. of Ontario v. A.G. of Canada (supra), Lord Watson, at page 366, said: "It appears to their Lordships that neither the Parliament of Canada nor the provincial legislatures have authority to repeal statutes which they could not directly enact."

The parties supporting section 206A relied upon the Lord's Day Alliance of Canada v. A.G. of Manitoba (supra), which held that section 1A of a Manitoba Statute entitled "An Act to amend The Lord's Day Act" (Man. 1923, chapter 25) was within the legislative powers of the Manitoba Legislature as coming within section 92 (13)—property and civil rights in the Province; or section 92 (16)—matters of merely local or private nature in the Province; that section 1A there held valid reads as follows:—

1A. Notwithstanding anything to the contrary in this or any other Act of this Legislature, or in any law in force in this province over which this province has legislative authority, it shall be lawful for any person or corporation on the Lord's Day, to run, conduct or convey by any mode of conveyance any excursion on which passengers are conveyed for hire to summer resorts, beaches or camping grounds within the province.

It is to be observed that the section 1A makes no reference to any purpose of limiting the prohibition under "The Lord's Day Act (Canada)," but on the contrary that Legislature declared its intention of dealing only with the law "over which this Province has legislative authority."

In section 206A there is not declared any intention of so restricting the enactment to the legislative authority as in 1A, but on the contrary section 206A (1) declares its intention to make lawful that ". . . which but for this section would be unlawful under section 6 of 'The Lord's Day Act (Canada).'" It is contended that this statement might be regarded as surplusage, but it is not permissible to regard words as surplusage when some meaning may be attached to them. In Ouimet v. Bazin (supra), at page 508, the Chief Justice said, "We cannot with propriety shut our eyes to the words of the title"; with propriety one cannot disregard the formally expressed intention of the Legislature.

It was contended that if section 206A is to be assigned to section 91 of the B.N.A. Act it must be on the ground that it is criminal law within section 91 (27); further, that the test of criminal law is whether there is a prohibition under penalty, and therefore as section 206A is in permissive language and without prohibition it cannot be criminal. There was cited in support of that contention P.A.T.A. v. Attorney General of Canada (1931 A.C. 310, where Lord Atkin, at page 324, said:

Criminal law connotes only the quality of such acts or omissions as are prohibited under appropriate penal provisions by authority of the State. The criminal quality of an act cannot be discerned by intuition; nor can it be discovered by reference to any standard but one: Is the act prohibited with penal consequences?

No doubt that is one test that is available in ascertaining whether particular legislation should be assigned to the category of criminal law within section 91 (27) or to other category such as 92 (13 or 16). But that test is not absolute because the Legislature may validly enact a prohibition with penal consequences which would not be criminal within section 91 (27) but within section 92 (Hodge v. R. (1883-4) 9 A.C. 117 at page 131). In any event the prohibitions in sections 4 and 6 of the Lord's Day Act do fall within the category of criminal law (A.G. of Ont. v. Hamilton Street Railway (supra), Lord's Day Alliance of Canada v. A.G. of Manitoba (supra)), and any amendment or limitation of such criminal law, whether in terms permissive or prohibitive, must be likewise criminal law and within the exclusive legislative jurisdiction of Parliament (A.G. of Ontario v. A.G. of Canada (supra) at page 366). It follows that section 206A should be held to be ultra vires of the Legislature.

There is an additional reason for holding that the provision for Sunday sports and games provided for by section 206A is ultra vires of the Legislature; under section 206A the provision for Sunday sports and games is to be enacted by a by-law of the Vancouver City Council and that by-law is not "by provincial Act or law" as required by the excepting provisions of the Lord's Day Act. Section 206A does not directly authorize any Sunday sport or game; under section 206A the effective provision for Sunday sports and games is to be made by a by-law of the Council of the City of Vancouver, which Council may designate the sports and games that may be played, the places within the City of Vancouver, and hours for playing.

206A (2) (a) authorizes the Council of the City of Vancouver to pass a by-law to bring subsection (1) of 206A into effect within the city or in the part or parts of the city specified in the by-law. The by-law is to specify the games or sports to be played (206A (2) (b)) other than horse-racing; the part or parts of the city for so playing (206A (2) (d)) and the hours between 1.30 and 6 p.m. (206A (2) (e)), and to provide for the regulation and control of the games and sports (206A (2) (f)). 206A (1) provides in effect that "where a by-law passed under subsection (2) hereof is in force and subject to its provisions" then such Sunday sports and games are lawful. In the result the Council of the City of Vancouver decides whether there shall be Sunday games or sports and by by-law designates the games or sports that may be played, the hours between 1.30 and 6 p.m., and the part or parts of the City of Vancouver in which they may be played.

It follows that the by-law is the operative provision which permits Sunday games and sports, and it is the Vancouver City Council and not the Legislature which decides whether there shall be on Sunday public sports or games, the places within the city and the hours for playing. In substance, 206A merely empowers the City Council to pass the by-law authorizing Sunday sports.

Under these circumstances the authority for Sunday games and sports is the city by-law, but such by-law is not a "provincial Act." The law consequential upon such by-law is municipal law, not provincial law; that is peculiarly the case here because section 206A grants such power only to the Council of the City of Vancouver and the law consequential upon such by-law would be municipal law peculiar to the City of Vancouver but not "provincial law." Hence the by-law is not "provincial Act or law" within the excepting provisions of sections 4 and 6 of the Lord's Day Act.

No doubt the Legislature has power in general to delegate to the Vancouver City Council, a subordinate legislative body; but that is not here the question. Parliament has chosen to withdraw the several prohibitions of the Lord's Day Act in so far, and only in so far as there may be valid Provincial Act or law authorizing the Sunday sport or game, and subject to such withdrawal the prohibitions of Parliament are paramount. Therefore, the question is to what extent has Parliament withdrawn those prohibitions, and the extent of that withdrawal is to be determined from the meaning of the excepting provisions in sections 4 and 6. Parliament has not withdrawn its prohibitions wherever a Municipal Council has expressed a contrary wish. Parliament by the Lord's Day Act has withdrawn in favour of "Provincial Act or law in force," but those are separate and distinct from a municipal by-law or from municipal law. It follows that a by-law purporting to be authorized by section 206A is not within the excepting provisions of sections 4 and 6 of the Lord's Day Act because such by-law is not "Provincial Act or law."

It was also contended that Sunday games and sports were authorized by section 206A (1), which in effect adopts and re-enacts the by-law by reference. That contention cannot prevail. Had the by-law been passed prior to the enactment of section 206A, then it might be more readily contended that subsection (1) of section 206A adopted the by-law by reference, but that is not here the case. At the time of the enactment of section 206A, the by-law was not in force and there was nothing on which subsection (1) of section 206A could operate until the Council subsequently determined the content of the by-law and enacted it. Further, that contention is excluded by the express words of 206A (1), namely, "where a by-law passed under subsection (2) hereof is in force and subject to its provisions." The application of that subsection of 206A is conditional upon the by-law being validly enacted under subsection (2).

That appears from the words which require the by-law to be "passed" under subsection (2) and to be "in force."

Further, subsection (1) of 206A is made subordinate to the by-law as appears from the words "subject to its provisions," and that being subordinate is emphasized by 206A (2) (b), which by mandatory language limits the application of subsection (1) of 206A "to such public games or sports as are specified in the by-law."

It follows that the operative provision which permits Sunday sports is the by-law, and whether there is to be any Sunday sport and the extent thereof, the places and times for playing, are decided not by the Legislature, but by the Vancouver City Council. That Council by by-law decides what, if any, Sunday sport or game shall be played and the places within Vancouver and hours for so playing.

In consequence, section 206A should be construed not as enacting the by-law by reference so as to make the by-law a Provincial Statute, but should be construed as intended to authorize the City Council to enact a by-law.

It follows that the by-law authorized by section 206A is not "provincial Act or law" within the excepting provisions of sections 4 and 6 of the Lord's Day Act, and not being within the excepting provisions must conflict with the prohibitions contained in sections 4 and 6 of the Lord's Day Act. In the result the by-law must purport to amend or restrict those prohibitions of Parliament, and that is ultra vires of the Council operating under authority of the Legislature.

It also follows that section 206A is ultra vires the Legislature in purporting to authorize a by-law that will conflict with the prohibitions of Parliament or so to amend or restrict valid criminal legislation.

In conclusion section 206A should be held to be ultra vires of the Legislature for the reasons:

- (1) The enactment of section 206A is within section 91 (27) of the B.N.A. Act.
- (2) A by-law enacted pursuant to section 206A is not "Provincial Act or law" within the excepting provisions of sections 4 and 6 of the Lord's Day Act, and the Legislature cannot empower a municipality to make legal that validly prohibited by Parliament under section 91 (27) of the B.N.A. Act.
